About the course Reading financial statements

Course Presenter : Corporate Finance Institute

Reading financial statements, in this course we will learn how to interpret and analyze the three core financial statements: the income statement, balance sheet, and cash flow statement. You'll gain a clear understanding of how each statement reflects a companyâ€™s financial health, performance, and liquidity. The course covers key concepts such as revenue, expenses, assets, liabilities, equity, and cash flows. Youâ€™ll learn how to identify trends, calculate essential financial ratios, and spot warning signs or strengths in financial reports. Through real-world examples and practical exercises, you'll develop the skills to read financial statements with confidence, whether you're an investor, manager, student, or business owner. This course provides a solid foundation for making informed financial decisions and understanding the story behind the numbers in any organization. Corporate Finance Institute
