About the course YouTube Analytics

What do YouTube analytics mean? Every channel owner and manager on YouTube should have access to the YouTube Analytics reports, which measures watch time, tracks the gender and geographic distribution of a channel's viewers, where they discover videos, which devices they're consuming content on, and much more.Can you see other Youtubers Analytics? If you need to analyze competitor's channels or videos, you can use Popsters. To analyze your channel's statistics, go to Creative Studio (click your avatar in the upper right corner). You'll see the link to YouTube Analytics in the left column.Can Youtubers see who viewed their videos 2020? No, the owner of the video has no idea who has viewed it. Same with if you like the video. There is currently no way for creators to see the names of people who viewed or liked the video. ... The creator can also see audience retention for geographical locations and age groups for each video.Can I watch my own YouTube video to get 4000 watch hours? In order for the 4000 hours of Watch Time to count, your videos have to be public. So that means you can't do a live stream, and then set it to unlisted. You also can't make videos and then six months down the line, delete them or set them to private. They have to remain public to count.
